Center for Native American Youth Scholarship

2014 Summer Program for High School Students

Columbia University

In partnership with Columbia University’s Secondary School Programs, for the fourth year the Center for Native American Youth (CNAY) is pleased to offer one full tuition and residential scholarship for a Native American student to attend Columbia’s Summer Program for High School Students during summer 2014 in New York City. Through this partnership, the Center for Native American Youth and Columbia University will reach out and engage more Native youth in summer education programs and the opportunities at Columbia University.

In this packet you will find a short description of the program, scholarship, and application. For more information, please click here to visit the program’s webpage.

What is the Summer Program for High School Students?

“Summer Program for High School Students” is a 3-week pre-college program for students entering grades 9 through freshman year of college who are interested in intensive summer study. The Summer Program for High School Students in New York City is renowned for its academic rigor, instructional excellence, and the unique opportunity to experience college life in the Ivy League while sampling the vibrancy of New York City.” The program is offered in two sessions. The dates for 2014 are as follows:

- Session I: June 22, 2014 - July 12, 2014
- Session II: July 14, 2014 - August 2, 2014

Who is eligible?

To be eligible for the Center for Native American Youth’s scholarship, students must be of Native American descent and a student who will enter 9th, 10th, 11th or 12th grade in the 2014-2015 school year or their freshman year of college in 2014.

There is a Freshman-Sophomore and Junior-Senior Division at Columbia University’s High School Program. The CNAY will accept applications for both divisions.
What does the scholarship cover?

The scholarship covers the cost of housing, tuition, meals during the week, coursework materials and other required student services. The application fees are also waived. The estimated value of the scholarship is over $8,000. Students will need to pay for their own travel to and from the program and bring spending money (to cover expenses such as weekend meals, laundry, personal items, and transportation and admission fees for optional activities around the city). Columbia University recommends a generous amount of $900 in spending money, which allows students to attend Broadway shows and other events in New York City. The Center for Native American Youth recommends contacting the local tribe, school and other local organizations to identify funding to cover travel and spending money.

If I receive the scholarship which courses can I take?

The CNAY encourages students to consider the college preparatory curricula; however, we will accept applicants for any of the programs. We want you to apply for the program and course that most closely aligns with your interest. In the application form below you will be asked to state which course you would like to apply to and why. Click here to review the 2014 course listings for the Junior-Senior Division and visit this link to view the Freshman-Sophomore Division courses.

Story of Inspiration Student Essay Prompt

Please submit an essay which responds to the prompt below in 750 words or less. By submitting your application and submitting your “Story of Inspiration” you are agreeing to give the Center for Native American Youth rights to share your essay on www.cnay.org.

Prompt: The Center for Native American Youth is working to highlight inspiring Native American youth stories from across Indian Country. We want to know what motivates you, what has been helpful in overcoming barriers you have faced as a Native American youth, who helps you reach your goals, and what makes you proud to be who you are. Your submissions will help empower and support young Natives everywhere. Please write an essay no longer than 750 words which talks about stories of inspiration in your life and/or community. Below are some topics you may consider in your “Story of Inspiration” essay:

1. Tell us what programs or efforts you have led or participated in your community to tackle pressing challenges and/or inspire youth.
2. Describe what success looks like to you.
3. What are challenges and successes you see facing youth in your community? How have you been involved in addressing these issues?
4. What are your dreams for the future of Natives in your community and all of Indian Country?
5. Identify and describe a person or people who have significantly influenced on you.

The CNAY invites you to be creative in your storytelling. Feel free to submit a video or photos along with your essay, although this is not required.
