

INCLUSIVE AMERICA PROJECT

 THE ASPEN INSTITUTE

Brie Loskota is the Executive Director of the Martin Marty Center for the Public Understanding of Religion at The University of Chicago Divinity School. She is the former Executive Director of the Center for Religion and Civic Culture at the University of Southern California in Los Angeles. Her research focuses on how religions change and make change in the world. She is co-founder and senior advisor to the American Muslim Civic Leadership Institute and serves as the implementation partner for the United States Institute of Peace's Generation Change program. Loskota provides expert guidance to local, state, and federal government agencies to ensure more effective partnerships with faith communities on issues including public health, mental health, and disasters.

Her writing has been published by numerous publications, and her commentary has also been featured in the Los Angeles Time, The Nation, National Public Radio, and more. She has spoken at the World Economic Forum, the US-Islamic World Forum, the Aspen Institute, KPCC (NPR), and at universities, foundations, and community groups around the globe. The World Economic Forum selected Loskota as a member of their 2017 Young Global Leaders class. She is a former Inclusive America Project Fellow at the Aspen Institute, a member of the Pacific Council on International Policy, a term member of the Council on Foreign Relations, a Truman National Security Fellow, and a Homegrown Violent Extremism Study Group associate at USC.
